eument-net

eument-net is a European network of mentoring programmes promoting women and gender equality in academia and research, initiated with support from the 6th European Framework Programme. It has developed experience in trans-national cooperation, knowledge transfer and exchange on best practice in mentoring.

Supported by the 6th EU Framework Programme for Research and Technological Development

Sustainability and advancement of mentoring programmes in the context of structural change

University structures are changing throughout Europe. Staff development and organizational change could possibly foster the equal participation of women in all hierarchical positions. Which contribution can mentoring programmes make here and which forms of cooperation with other protagonists have to be installed or deepened?

The eument-net workshop provides a unique opportunity for coordinators of mentoring programmes and specialists in staff development to discuss and share their experience in order to enhance their programmes' or institutions' range of services and programmes.

Workshop Method

The workshop is based on key inputs by invited speakers and contributions by participants. Thematic discussion groups will provide further opportunity to develop strategies and solutions. Contributions by participants are organised in thematic tracks:

01. Human resource development through cooperation between mentoring programmes and other actors / measures in the field of promotion for young academics
02. Structural change via mentoring
03. Measures inside the institution to advance, sustain or develop mentoring-programmes
04. Ways to ensure synergistic effects through cooperation with national and international partners

Find more information about participants' inputs on www.eument-net.eu.

Maximal length for participants' inputs: 10'.

A professional moderator will lead the discussion and enhance the exchange among participants.
